EASTERN NEWS.

[SPECIAL DISPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN.]

Hayes' Letter of Acceptance.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, July 8.—[illegible] Hon. Edward McPherson, Hon. Wm. A. Howard, [illegible] Rainey and others, Committee of the Republican National Convention—Gentlemen: In reply to your official communication of June [illegible] I am informed of my nomination [illegible] President of the United States [illegible] Convention at Cincinnati. I accept [illegible] with gratitude [illegible] I shall be able, if elected, to execute [illegible] the high office as a trust for the benefit of all the people. I do not deem it necessary [illegible] any extended examination of the [illegible] principles made by the convention. Its resolutions are in accord with my views and I [illegible] the principles [illegible] which are of such importance that I [illegible] briefly express my convictions in [illegible] the 5th resolution adopted by the convention [illegible] than [illegible] to the victors [illegible] the spoils. The old rule, the true rule, that honesty, capacity and fidelity constitute the only real qualifications for office, and that there is no other claim, gave place to the idea that party services were to be chiefly considered. All parties in practice have adopted this system. It has been essentially modified since its first introduction. It has not, however, been improved. At first the President, either directly or through the heads of departments, made all the appointments, but gradually the appointing power, in many cases, passed into the control of members of Congress. The offices in these cases have become not merely rewards for party services, but rewards for services to party leaders. This system destroys the independence of the separate departments of the Government. It tends directly to extravagance and official incapacity. It is a temptation to dishonesty; it hinders and impairs that careful supervision and strict accountability by which alone faithful and efficient public service can be secured; it obstructs the prompt removal and sure punishment of the unworthy. In every way it degrades the civil service and the character of the Government. It is felt, I am confident, by a large majority of the members of Congress to be an intolerable burden and an unwarrantable hindrance to the proper discharge of their legitimate duties. It ought to be abolished. The reform should be thorough, radical and complete. We should return to the principles and practice of the founders of the Government, supplying by legislation when needed that which was formerly the established custom. They neither expected nor desired from public officers any partisan service. They meant that public officers should owe their whole service to the Government and to the people. They meant that the officer should be secure in his tenure as long as his personal character remained untarnished and the performance of his duties satisfactory. If elected, I shall conduct the administration of the Government upon these principles, and all constitutional powers vested in the executive will be employed to establish this reform.

[illegible] of principles by the Cincinnati [illegible] makes no announcement in favor of a [illegible] I do not assume to add [illegible] but believing that the restoration of the civil service to the system established by [illegible] followed by the early Presidents [illegible] accomplished by an executive who is [illegible] to use the patronage of his office [illegible] a second term [illegible] If elected I shall not be a candidate [illegible]

If elected, I shall approve every appropriate measure to accomplish the [illegible] and shall oppose any step backward.

[illegible] with respect to the public school [illegible] which should receive the hearty support of the American people. Agitation upon this [illegible] the constitution and [illegible] the schools are placed beyond all danger of sectarian control or interference. The Republican party is pledged to secure such an amendment [illegible]

[illegible] of the Convention on the subject of the pacification of the country and the protection of all its citizens in the free enjoyment of all their constitutional rights is timely and of great importance. The condition of the Southern States attracts the attention and commands the sympathy of the people of the whole [illegible] There can be no enduring peace [illegible] portion of the [illegible] resting merely upon distinctions [illegible] sectional lines is always unfortunate and may be disastrous. Don Carlos Interviewed.

The Herald's Washington special says: Don Carlos arrived here last night with four traveling companions—all Spanish noblemen. All tried to conceal their identity and spoke French. When unearthed by an interviewer he said: I arrived at Halifax, went thence to Boston, from thence to Chicago, down the Mississippi valley to New Orleans, thence to Vera Cruz and thence to the City of Mexico. In Mexico I had a charming reception; the people fairly rivalled each other in heaping kindnesses upon me; they gave balls and receptions in my honor and showed me every possible attention. I had determined to travel incognito through Mexico as I have through this country, but it was impossible. There were many who knew me. I was the first Spanish Prince who ever visited their shores, which probably accounts for their great kindness. I intended to visit Chili, Peru and South American countries generally, but the amiability of the Mexican people made me lengthen my stay so that I finally had no time to finish my programme, but had to return to Europe. I came here by way of Richmond. The scenery all along the Potomac, which I viewed from the steamer, was superb, more especially Mount Vernon with its beautiful historical associations. I have enjoyed my trip through this country very much. It is full of interesting things. I am only sorry that I can not make such a flying visit, but I have to return home to my wife, where a joyful event awaits me. I have already five children, said he, and this will be the sixth. I married when 19, said he laughingly, and am now 28. His attention being called to the stories that had appeared in print (that he had come to America for the purpose of establishing his throne in Mexico or Cuba), Carlos said with some indignation mingled with amusement that this was a piece of foolishness. He only came to America for instruction and pleasure, and such thoughts had never entered his mind as an imputation of disloyalty to Spain. He declared that no true Spaniard would desire for a moment that Cuba should be torn from the Spanish, or that the Spanish empire should be thus dismembered. I am a Spaniard before you—nothing else—he exclaimed proudly; there is no difference between Spaniards, whether Monarchists or Republicans, Alfonsists or Carlists, and we should all scorn to rob Spain's diadem of its most precious jewel. He added: I am not in search of a throne—I only claim that which rightfully belongs to me, and with significant bearing he exclaimed to attain that throne I have by no means given up my hope. Carlos then spoke at considerable length of European politics and the certainty of a general war in the East.

The Burning of Castle Garden.

NEW YORK, July 9.—The famous old circular building on the Battery known as Castle Garden, was completely destroyed by fire this evening. Nothing but a mass of charred ruins remain. Of late years it has been the first resting place for thousands of hopeful emigrants. At 5:25 P. M. some emigrants who were in the building observed smoke issuing from the balcony on the second tier. They gave the alarm, and it was found the fire was raging between the flooring and the curtain of the tier underneath. The most strenuous efforts were made to subdue the fire without avail. Two hundred German emigrants were in the building, and among these the greatest excitement prevailed in saving their effects and escaping from the burning building. About an hour after the fire began the roof fell in and shortly after the flames were extinguished and the walls are all that remain. It is supposed the fire originated by sparks from the pipe of a smoker. The loss is estimated at $50,000, covered by insurance. The property was owned by the city.

NEW YORK, July 10.—Castle Garden was destroyed by fire yesterday, and the Times in an editorial this morning says: Nothing is left worth saving. Millions of dollars worth of really valuable property might burn in this city without causing the tenth part of the stir which the destruction of this historical building has created. In its day it has been the scene of many stirring events and its peculiar appearance having the suggestion of a mosque from the distance firmly fixed it in the memories of thousands of people who have passed in and out of the harbor. Latterly this has been only an excrescence on the breezy esplanade which surrounds it. As the city owns the site, it is likely the fragmentary remains of the old hall will disappear and another edifice take its place.

The Trade Dollar.

The trade dollars, at the present price of silver can now be coined at a profit and circulated at par with greenbacks. Individuals can have their own silver coined at the mint, under the existing laws, and realize their profit. Trade dollars have already made their appearance in this city at bar rooms and restaurants, and in the course of a few days they will no longer be looked at as curiosities. As it is idle to expect of either branch of the present Congress any decent legislation on the silver question, the substantial use of the price of silver appears to be the only thing which can protect us from debasement of currency. By means of trade dollar inflation it is not impossible that if trade dollars should become plenty, but what banks would refuse them. It is certain that if our object is to regain a gold standard currency cannot be diluted with trade dollars or any other kind of dollars of inferior value to gold without making the object more doubtful and more difficult than it is.

Blaine Appointed Senator.

AUGUSTA, Maine, July 10.—Gov. Connor has notified the Speaker of the House of Representatives at Washington by telegraph that he has appointed J. G. Blaine Senator in Congress, and that Mr. Blaine had placed in his hands his resignation as Representative from the third congressional district. Blaine's health shows no special change, though possibly not quite so well for a day or two past. His physician wishes to have him removed to the sea shore as soon as practicable. Blaine rejects the proposition of a European tour.

The Servians Defeated.

The Journal de Debats has a special from Semlin, a frontier town of Austria, in which it is said the defeat of the Servians under Gen. Zach is officially admitted. The Turks have crossed the river Drina and all the troops are encamped at Belgrade. Many troops start for the frontier and the last reserves have been called [illegible]. It also has a special from Vienna in which it is stated the dispatches recently published from [illegible] sources are unfounded except [illegible] relative importance gained by Gen. Tchernayeff.

CONGRESSIONAL.

Senate.

WASHINGTON, July 7.—In the Senate to-day Morrill of Maine said a conference committee had come to mean the will of one house of Congress and only one. On such ground the conference was impracticable, because there could be but one side to the question as long as the House of Representatives insisted not only that the Senate must consent to a conference, but when the House got so far as to adhere it would be absolutely a defiance of law and that meant revolution. The Senate committee members had met the House half way, if more could be done consistent with integrity of the Senate he would be glad if some one here or elsewhere would proclaim it. The Senate committee to meet the House half way agreed to a reduction to the extent of 600 in the force of the civil service, believing it better that the public service should suffer than have an important appropriation bill fail, but this proposition was absolutely rejected by the House. Morrill said it was not on the principle of just economy that this was done by the House. It could not be made apparent here or anywhere that there was any necessity for public justice in the attempt to raid upon the clerks in the departments. The principle which laid behind this action of the House covered the whole field of legislation and annihilated the Senate of the United States. It had been claimed that the House had reduced the appropriation as compared with the bills of last year $[illegible],000,000, but there was a deficiency bill of $[illegible],000,000 which had been counted in the $[illegible],000,000 and had no business there. The Senate committee on appropriations had reduced appropriations as compared with the bills of last year $22,000,000, and in the last three years the Senate had reduced these bills $[illegible],000,000. The House had appropriated and expended balances without mentioning the amount and he believed these balances amounted to about $[illegible],000,000; add to this deficiency the bill of $[illegible],000,000 and it would be seen the House had reduced the appropriations $[illegible],000,000, and as the Senate committee on appropriations had reduced them to the extent of $2[illegible],000,000, the difference between the two houses will be only $[illegible],000,000.

Morton addressed the Senate claiming that the attitude of the House was revolutionary and nullifying. He said if either house said to the other, repeal this obnoxious statute or we will stop the working of the Government, such a proposition was revolutionary, and if that house insisted on new legislation in the appropriation bills which were objected to by the other it was the duty of the house proposing the change to recede, otherwise one house can nullify a law.

Thurman replied and claimed that there was neither nullification nor dictation in the action of the House. He could conceive acts whereby the House would have a perfect right to say to the Senate, take one half the appropriation for the army or navy or let the appropriation fail altogether.

Logan said he agreed with the Senator from Indiana, Morton, that the action of one House of Congress in saying it would not agree to appropriation bills unless the other would agree to change a certain law was both nullification and revolutionary. He said the action of the House of Representatives in the present case was to make a little capital before the country and he (Logan) would stay here until the expiration of his term of office before he would agree to a proposition demanded with a hand at his throat.

On motion of Morrill to grant the new conference asked for by the House it was agreed to. The chair appointed Windom, Allison and Bayard members of the committee on part of the Senate.

WASHINGTON, July 10.—Eaton submitted a resolution directing the Secretary of War to report the number of troops in the Southern States and the location of each command and asked present consideration, but Edmunds objecting the resolution was overruled.

House.

Randall reported a bill continuing for ten days the act defraying temporarily the ordinary and necessary expenses of the government; passed.

Banning offered a resolution calling on the secretary of War for information in regard to the object of the military expedition against Northwestern Indians and for copies of all correspondence bearing on the origin of the expedition; adopted.

The committee on commerce to-day agreed to report and recommend for passage a bill introduced by Cox to regulate immigration. The bill embodies the main feature of the New York immigration law which has been set aside by a recent decision of the U. S. supreme court on the ground that Congress alone has jurisdiction of the subject. The forfeitures and penalties are to be paid into the U. S. treasury and from the fund thus created the several states are to be reimbursed the amounts that may be expended by or in them for the maintenance or return of pauper immigrants.

WASHINGTON, July 10.—The House passed the bill to continue the provisions of the act to provide temporarily for the expenditures of the government for a period of ten days from to-day. The Senate considered the same and passed it without amendments. In the Senate Thurman reported adversely on the Senate bill relative to the Castillan grant in California and it was indefinitely postponed.

The committee on banking and currency came to no conclusion this morning concerning the bill to repeal the specie resumption clause of the act of 1875.

In connection with Banning's resolution he submitted the following statement showing the distribution of U. S. troops: There are at present in the army [illegible] troops located as follows: Forty two hundred and [illegible] stationed belong to detachments at West Point, 7[illegible] are located in the Territories, [illegible] in Texas, [illegible] in other Southern States, while in the field operating against the Indians there are under Gen. Terry only [illegible] and under Gen. Crook only [illegible]. The remaining 4,000 are located in Northern cities and forts.

The Speaker pro tem. laid before the House telegrams from the Governor of Maine stating that Blaine having accepted the vacant Senatorship from that state had resigned his seat as member, from this day.

Bills were introduced and referred as follows:

By Scales—Appointing a commission to visit the Indian Territory and report the condition and management of the Indians.

By Steele of Wyoming—Authorizing the President to enlist recruits for the army to aid in suppressing the hostility of certain bands of Sioux Indians.

Singleton from the conference committee on the diplomatic and consular appropriation bill reported that the committee had not been able to agree. He related the history of the bill and said while the first conferees on the part of the Senate said they would not make a point as to the change of law, the last conferees declared the Senate had determined not to allow such change of law under any circumstances. He declared the House could not go before the country and justify its action in that regard. The opinion in the public mind would be that the Senate would allow large sums of money to be thrown into the hands of consular and diplomatic agents abroad and to be expended for electioneering purposes. The retrenchment in public expenditures was an absolute necessity. It was not that the House was insisting but the Senate was trying to prevent it and for that it would be held accountable to the country.

Randall stated that the Senate conferees were willing to adopt the amount appropriated for the diplomatic service, but were not willing to say that it should be in full for the year, and said it was his opinion that if the entire diplomatic service should fail for want of appropriation [illegible] the American ministers were brought home no material interests of the country would suffer.

Kasson—But the national would—I hope the House will not propose to [illegible] to every country in the world by [illegible] with [illegible] at [illegible]

Foster, a member of the conference committee, expressed the opinion that it was the determination of the House to humiliate the Senate. The Senate was willing to accept [illegible] of the appropriation and he was sure not a dollar beyond that [illegible] expended.

Foster—When the gentleman misstates [illegible]

Singleton—Do you mean to charge me with [illegible]

Foster—I do. If the gentleman makes that statement I say it is an untruth.

Singleton—Well sir, something can be said about that after a while.

The Speaker pro tem.—Order, gentlemen, order.

At the close of the debate Foster rising to a question of privilege said: In the heat of the moment I applied epithets to the gentleman from Mississippi [illegible] which after reflection I wish to retract. [illegible] I did so [illegible] that he intended to charge me with [illegible] and I felt at the moment [illegible] I do not wish to have any personal [illegible] to violate in any way the proprieties of debate.

Singleton—I [illegible] very glad to [illegible] what the gentleman says. He and I have been on the best footing with each other and never had any misunderstanding. [illegible] into this [illegible] and I came back at him in the same way. He withdraws the offensive language and we are just as before. I have no difficulty with the gentleman, but I always do my duty and maintain my rights.

The report was accepted and a new conference committee appointed, consisting of Singleton, Springer and Monroe, the two first being members of the committee on foreign affairs.

Committee on appropriations reported a bill to continue for ten days longer the bill allowing the public printing to be carried on; passed.

Holman moved to suspend rules and adopt the resolution instructing the committee on banking and currency to report for consideration and amendment a bill to repeal so much of the resumption act as provides for the redemption of U. S. notes with coin; agreed; yeas 10[illegible], nays [illegible]; not two thirds in the affirmative.

Cox moved that when the House adjourn, it be till Tuesday next; rejected.

Holman moved that the House adjourn until Wednesday next; agreed to. Adjourned.

The heat of the hall was very great throughout the day, and some members and employes were injuriously affected by it.

IMPEACHMENT TRIAL.

Belknap Investigation.

WASHINGTON, July 8.—F. D. Townsend, Adjutant General U. S. A., testified: There were two copies of the letter of army officers at Fort Sill recommending John S. Evans for appointment as post trader there. One copy was transmitted directly to the War Department and the other came to the department through Marsh. There were two letters from Evans accepting the position of post trader. Witness produced an order, January 11, 1871, of the Secretary of War to Gen. Grierson to remove all traders from Fort Sill, except J. S. Evans, and testified that the manuscript came to him in the handwriting of the Secretary of War. Witness also produced a letter from Gen. Grierson, commander at Fort Sill, acknowledging the receipt of the order of January 11th and testified that the order applied only to Fort Sill. The managers proposed to offer testimony to the effect that charges were made against Evans by the Solicitor of the Treasury, for introducing liquor into the Indian country, to which the counsel for the accused objected. The Senate admitted the testimony and a letter was read from E. P. Banfield, Solicitor of the Treasury, dated Oct. 26, 1871, addressed to the Secretary of War, with two enclosures signed by J. S. Huckleberry, U. S. attorney for the Western district of Arkansas, charging that liquor had been introduced into the Indian country by Evans and others. Witness produced two letters of the Secretary of War in reply to Banfield, the first dated Nov. 27th, stating that Evans had authority to take ten gallons of brandy and ten gallons of whisky to Fort Sill for the use of the officers there. He also produced a letter from General Grierson dated February 13th, 1872, relating to post trader Evans, stating that his character as a business man was good, but that he was absent from his post, and left it in charge of J. J. Fisher, who was associated with him; that repeated complaints had been made of the high prices charged by the post trader; that he (Grierson) had investigated them and was told by Fisher that they had to pay $12,000 per annum to a man in New York for the appointment of post trader, and that he (Grierson) had requested him to make the statement in writing that he might lay it before the proper authorities; but they would not do so for fear their license to trade would be taken from them. Witness testified this letter came to his office on the 9th of March, and was submitted to the Secretary of War on the 11th. Witness knew nothing of Gen. Hazen having testified before the military committee of the House three days before; he had no knowledge of any letter of the Secretary of War in response to that of Gen. Grierson of February 19, 1872.

Cross examination by Carpenter.—Witness testified he knew Capt. Robinson, formerly of the 10th cavalry, who was courtmartialed and dismissed. Carpenter then offered to put in evidence the finding of the court in the case of Capt. Robinson, and the letter written by him to the secretary to the effect that he (Robinson) knew of the abuses in the Fort Sill post tradership and threatening that if the Secretary did not disapprove of the finding of the court, Robinson would expose the whole matter. Carpenter stated he would follow this up with testimony to show that the Secretary did approve of the finding of the court and that that officer was dismissed and his threatening letter placed on file in the War Department by Secretary Belknap.

Witness testified he received a letter from the Judge Advocate General on the 3d of March, 1876, after Belknap left the War Department.

The managers objected to the admission of the testimony. After argument the objection was overruled and it was admitted; yeas 2[illegible], nays 18.

W. F. Moody, money clerk in the New York office of Adams Express Company, testified that he made out way bills for money packages sent to Secretary Belknap. He did not know whether the packages contained money or brown paper. They were sent as money packages.

A. Smalley testified that in 1872 he was connected with the New York Tribune and was clerk to the committee on military affairs; that he wrote an article in regard to Fort Sill.

Question by McMahon—From whom did you obtain the information upon which you wrote that article.

Carpenter—That won't do; a regular journalist is not bound to furnish any authority for his statement.

The manager withdrew his question.

Leo. and Whitley, manager at Washington of the Western Union Telegraph Company was sworn and testified: He had copies of telegrams as far back as June, 1873, only, the others had been destroyed in the regular course. The business rule of the company was to retain messages two years. The witness then entered the usual protest against the production of the messages, but the Senate decided he must, and he sub[illegible] a number, but as none of them had any connection with the case, they were not read.

The following telegrams was then submitted:

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20, 1871.
Marsh, Harper & Co.—Letter by mail to-day. Must come.
W. W. BELKNAP.

WASHINGTON, 31st May, 1875.
C. P. Marsh, New York—Leave here Tuesday evening. Will be at St. James Hotel Wednesday.
W. W. B.

Witness was directed to produce on Monday, the other telegrams which have passed between Belknap, R. G. Cary & Co., and C. P. Marsh.

W. T. Barnard was sworn. He was private secretary for Secretary Belknap from April 1st, 18[illegible] until his resignation on the 2d of March last. He had charge of his private letters and papers. "The Secretary of War usually went to West Point in the latter part of May. He had been to West Point with him several times; was there with him in 1872 and 1873. Mr. and Mrs. Marsh were there at the time Mrs. Bowers was there. He thought it was before they went to Europe. He saw Marsh at the War Department in 1874 and heard a portion of the conversation between him and the Secretary, but paid no attention to it. He saw but one letter from Marsh to Secretary Belknap and that was the one already in evidence. After Gen. Belknap resigned witness put together all his private papers and let [illegible] took them to him. He did not read any of them.

The Senate then at 4:40, sitting as court of impeachment adjourned until Monday at 12 o'clock.

WASHINGTON, July 10.

When the time arrived for resuming consideration of the articles of impeachment, Whitelaw Reid, managing editor of the New York Tribune, was sworn and examined.

Witness was asked whether he recollected an article in the Tribune in 1872 regarding complaints against post traders at Fort Sill, and replied he did. He was asked whether after the publication of the article he had any communication from Belknap either personally or by letter in regard to the authorship of the article. To this counsel Carpenter objected, whereupon a lengthy discussion between counsel for the defense and the managers ensued. McMahon of the latter stated his object was to show that the Secretary of War had made no effort to have an inquiry into the truth of the complaint. He said he expected to show that the conduct of Belknap was that of a guilty man, who was aware of the existence of a system of extortion and imposition against the soldiers at Fort Sill.

The Senate refused to allow the question.

McMahon asked witness whether he had received a communication from Gen. McDowell on the subject after the publication of the Tribune's article. This was also objected to, but the objection was overruled and witness said he had received such a communication. The communication was offered to be placed in evidence.

Carpenter, of counsel for accused, submitted telegrams [illegible] Sherman and Lieut. Gen. Sheridan [illegible] the effect that the presence of the Lieut. [illegible] was necessary in Chicago and asking that arrangements be made to [illegible] deposition taken in that city. The [illegible] and managers agreed that it should [illegible] that Gen. Sheridan would testify [illegible] to the good character of the accused while Secretary of War [illegible] Sheridan's [illegible] to [illegible] his report on such [illegible]

[illegible] was placed on the stand and testified [illegible] payments made by him to Belknap [illegible] express [illegible] New York. He was asked to furnish the correspondence between him and Belknap which [illegible] by the defense and [illegible]

Marsh said he had destroyed the correspondence. He was asked when he destroyed the letter which he received from Belknap and said it was not his habit to keep letters. He was asked if as a man of business he did not keep letters directing the transmission of money. He said he may have kept them for a few days. He had no other transactions than to send him money which he received from Fort Sill. He was then examined for some time in regard to his acquaintance with Belknap and the meeting with his wife and Mrs. Marsh at West Point, but could remember very few of the details, saying it all happened [illegible] ago that he had forgotten it. As to the conversation which passed between him and Belknap when he paid money in person he said they never had a conversation. Belknap always took the money but they had no explanation of any kind, Belknap neither asking nor Marsh volunteering any information. He said the last payment was made according to Belknap's direction, $[illegible] to him and $750 to Mr. Belknap. He sent the money to Mrs. Belknap and addressed it to her at her residence here, but the letter miscarried and he saw her in New York and paid the money in person the after [illegible] the manner in which he obtained the contract from Evans, and in answer to a question as to what led to the reduction from $12,000 to $6,000 a year in payment for the post, he said it was mainly due to the complaints of Evans and his partner. The Tribune's article may have had something to do with it. The next time I saw the Secretary after the publication of the Tribune article he asked me if I had a contract with Evans, and I told him I had, and I asked who he thought was the instigator of the Tribune's article. He gave the name of General Hazen and said he presumed Hazen knew where the money was coming from that was being paid him. Witness made the first payment to Mrs. Belknap, now deceased, in November 1872. The package was addressed to the Secretary and inside was another package, containing money addressed to Mrs. Belknap.

Carpenter asked that an attachment be issued for J. S. Evans, post trader at Fort Sill. It was shown that he had been subpenaed by telegraph, and after discussion it was ordered that a subpena be issued for him to attend immediately.

Carpenter said the examination of this witness had been rather peculiar. He had been escorted around the case two or three times and as many times had been brought close to the border of it. The counsel for the defense desired to examine his testimony close before entering upon cross-examination and he asked permission to waive the cross examination until to-morrow; so ordered.

Marsh, in reply to questions of the managers, testified that when Evans wanted a favor he wrote to him (Marsh) and it was forwarded by him to the Secretary of War.

Gen. Hazen was sworn and examined.

Witness was interrogated in reference to an article published in the Tribune in 1872, but objection was made by counsel for defense to his testifying as to who furnished the information for that article, and the objection was sustained.

Did Secretary Belknap go to you about this matter to ascertain as to the result of the article after it appeared in the paper?

Objected to by the defense and after argument, the Senate by a vote of [illegible] to 18 decided to admit the testimony and Gen. Hazen answered "He did not."

In answer to a question, witness testified that he was in Washington after the article appeared and testified before the committee on military affairs, but had previously written to the War Department about all matters pertaining to farming out post traderships.

Carpenter objected to such testimony, saying if any such letters were on file in the War Department let them be produced, and not take the statement of the witness.

After a consultation among the managers the question was withdrawn.

The Belknap Impeachment Trial.

NEW YORK, July 10.—The Tribune's Washington special speaking of the impeachment trial says: It is unmistakably fatal to Belknap, but the telling testimony is not yet in, and when it comes there will not be a plank left for the defense to stand upon. The managers hope to be able to examine Marsh and Evans to-morrow, in which case direct examination on the part of the prosecution will close not later than a day after. The counsel for Belknap have thus far succeeded in breaking down or confusing none of the witnesses, and the case as presented by the managers has been a direct, consecutive and well knitted recital of facts. As far as developed, the course of the defense has not been demonstrated, but the ex-Secretary has said within a short time that he had no fears of conviction. The President a few days ago expressed confidence in Belknap's innocence.

Appropriations for the Pacific Coast.

A Washington special says the Senate appropriation committee to-day agreed to the items in the House river and harbor bill appropriating $75,000 for the improvement of Oakland harbor, $15,000 for Sacramento and Feather rivers and $20,000 for San Joaquin river. The limitation that the last named amount shall be applied only at Stockton is stricken out and the committee voted to entirely omit from the bill the House items of $12,000 for Monterey harbor and $70,000 for Wellington breakwater. The committee agreed to Mitchell's amendments increasing the appropriation for a canal and locks at the Cascades of the Columbia from $50,000 to $100,000 and increasing the items for the Upper Willamette from $[illegible] to $25,000 and for the Lower Willamette and Columbia rivers from $[illegible] to $[illegible],000.

The House Indian affairs committee to-day agreed to report favorably on Lane's bill for the removal of the Indians from Umatilla reservation. The route presents few difficulties, and the advantages will be great to Salt Lake City.

OREGON.

About two thousand people attended the celebration at Wright's, in Clackamas county. The oration was delivered by Hon. George K. Shiel, and a good time was had by all.

While attempting to ford the Deschutes river, a week ago last Friday, O. C. Schwartz had the misfortune to upset his wagon, from getting into deep and swift water, thereby losing everything of value in it, and but barely escaping from a watery grave himself. He succeeded in getting his team and part of his wagon ashore.

The San Francisco Post's Philadelphia correspondent says: "Oregon's exhibit of native products is attracting universal attention at the Centennial, and the department assigned the State is constantly thronged. Her wool, woods, minerals and cereals are especially noticeable, and redound greatly to the good fame of the country. For wheat raising and vegetable producing Oregon cannot be excelled. Oregon builded better than she knew when she selected A. J. Dufur commissioner of the Exhibition for that State, and, luckily, Mr. Dufur is in every way worthy of the position he holds, and will do the State much honor. Laying all jealousies aside, we rejoice to see our sister State coming forward for the public recognition to which she is plainly entitled, and hope that the flattering circumstances to which we have alluded will incite her citizens to renewed enterprise and loftier design."

The Seattle Tribune says: "Complaints having been filed against the various faro and lottery men in town, they were to-day judicially examined by Justice Scott. Mr. Jameson withdrew his plea and was put under $400 bonds to answer the offense at the next term of the district court. Mr. Fares was bonded in the sum of $400 to answer the charge of keeping the Puget Sound Lottery, alleged to be contrary to law. Mr. Wildman was also examined and put under bonds in the sum of $700. As they did not close up their lotteries they have again been arrested and will again be bonded, and this will be done as often as we understand as is necessary to close up the two places. Warrants were also got out to-day against some of the clerks, and they too will be prosecuted. We are further informed that a petition is now being signed asking the county commissioners to revoke their lottery licenses. A movement is on foot to quench them, prompted by those having places and games with which these come in successful competition. The proceedings are being watched with eager interest."

The Walla Walla Watchman says: "The apple crop this year will be far from uniform. In some localities they are a total failure, in others again they are abundant, as for instance Mr. Ward last Monday morning had to knock off of his trees about a hundred bushels to save them from breaking down, while Mr. Foster, from the foothills, wishes that somebody would knock about two or three hundred bushels on to his trees, for they all dropped off."

THE ASSESSMENT LAW.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

I would not have thrown down the gauntlet on the need of a reform in the [illegible] law, as I did in your issue of the 6th, only that a worse enactment menaces us, and for that reason I felt that a discussion of the question should be commenced in time, in order to avert the other peril that stares the business community in the face. From the favorable character of your comments I am emboldened to write again, feeling that with your aid to champion the reform, we are assured of success.

It is true that the [illegible] I [illegible] would not touch the [illegible] of [illegible] adjustment of [illegible], and [illegible] not so intended, that can only be [illegible] through a State board of equalization, as you [illegible]; but such a board would have but little to do except to adjust relative values on real estate, and that duty would not at all contravene or traverse the previous duties of an [illegible]

Finding your [illegible] to the issue of my suggestions to be shared [illegible] by a large number of [illegible] with whom I have conversed, I will proceed to advert to the partiality and injustice of the amendment to the [illegible] ment law passed by the last Legislature, the evil results of which were fortunately averted by an unconstitutional defect found in its preamble, by means of which a worse law than the present one was defeated of its sinister purpose. A law to declare that the debtor—no matter how much he is indebted—shall be allowed to deduct but $1,000 from his assessment is a cool, unblushing villainy, and a conspiracy against the interest and welfare of the business community, affecting collaterally every industry, and crippling every enterprise. It was a design [illegible] to throttle the onward progress of a new country, and inimical to every project in which capital must be borrowed to push forward improvement. No excuse, real or [illegible], or having the semblance of justice or equity, can be adduced why this arbitrary discrimination should be made, and leaves us to but one conclusion, namely, that the legislators of the last Assembly, goaded to desperation by the injustice of the present law, struck out blindly for a change of base, disregardful of the consequences. It has been said that

"The reckless youth who fired the Ephesian dome
Outlives in fame the pious fool who reared it."

But I believe a contemporary [illegible] will take as much attention to the [illegible] who reared this [illegible] monument, as to [illegible] who tear it down to up-build a worse one. Still, Mr. Editor, there is danger that [illegible] a thorough enlightenment is had on this subject, the incoming legislature will re-enact the law of two years ago, [illegible] of the [illegible] that prevented it becoming a law then, which was only technical, but habilitated with the same objectionable features, with regard to its injustice to the borrowing [illegible]. Its chief promoter is a member of the incoming administration, and declares his purpose to [illegible] to its fulfillment. And now, Mr. Editor, I would ask you to grant to the Hon. John Myers, State Senator-elect from Clackamas county, [illegible] in which to adduce justification for refusing to [illegible] the [illegible] who owe two [illegible] and dollars from [illegible] that amount from his legitimate [illegible], and why one thousand dollars [illegible] arbitrarily [illegible] the ultimatum [illegible] to th[illegible] why an [illegible] ment [illegible] in my article of the 6th, coupled with your proposition of a board of equalization, will not meet the demands of equality and bring the rich, the poor, the [illegible] and the dishonest, the willing and the unwilling, on one common plane of exact [illegible] ment, meting out to each man that God-given and inherent quality of justice to which we, as Americans, are entitled under the [illegible] of the law.

BRITISH COLUMBIA.

The Local House is further prorogued till September 21, 1876.

It is rumored that Sir Mathew Baillie Begbie, chief justice, has been offered the Lieut.-Governorship of British Columbia.

Dr. James, of Victoria, who formed one of the party who nearly forty years ago cut the rebel steamer Caroline from the American side and sent her over Niagara Falls, says that McLeod, who was tried at New York for the act, had no hand in the affair. He was a deputy sheriff at Niagara and prudently remained at home when the daring deed was perpetrated.

The body of an Indian named Sy[illegible]k, and known among the whites as "Indian Jim," was found near Mr. George Purser's house at Fulford Harbor, Salt Spring Island, on Sunday last. The skin of a pig was found near the place where the dead man was discovered. Deceased, who belonged to the rancheria near Sayward's mill, had evidently been shot, as a bullet hole was visible just below his ear.

The Victoria Colonist says: The custom statistics of British Columbia for 1875-6, show that there were collected during that period duties aggregating $491,432 22, being $15,000 in excess of the amount collected in 1874-5, and $152,000 in excess of the amount collected in 1873-4. We believe we are correct in the statement that this is the only province of the Dominion where there has been an increased revenue. All the other provinces show a marked falling off.

TUESDAY MORNING JULY 11 1876

HAYES AND THE RING

While the Democratic journals are endeavoring to alienate reform Republicans from Hayes and Wheeler by asserting that the nomination was the result of a bargain between the friends of Hayes and the Washington ring the Cincinnati Commercial, an independent paper which for some time prior to the convention showed a marked partiality to the Democratic party, declares there was an understanding that Morton's strength should go for Bristow whenever it should become possible to nominate him and that the Cameron crowd were in the arrangement also with Hartranft's votes It is not supposed that Bristow was the choice of the ring, but that he was considered by them as the man with whom, in the event of their own defeat they would stand the greatest chance of defeating Blaine The Indiana delegation it is said was to make the first break giving up Morton and throwing their votes solid for Bristow Then Pennsylvania was to follow, and at the same time all the Southern votes in the interest of Morton—which means a majority of votes in the Southern States—were to fall in line, thus giving Bristow such a formidable backing as would at once bring strength from other quarters sufficient to assure his nomination

To what extent this story is true it is impossible to say, but there is no doubt some such movement was discussed among the various plans for accomplishing the main object of the ring, the defeat of Blaine The vote of the ring was undoubtedly cast for Hayes and Wheeler on the final ballot, but it was not in pursuance of any understanding between the friends of the successful candidates and the manipulators of the ring, but because the latter perceived the fact that by such a course they could most effectually attack the one man they sought to destroy Michigan had done for Hayes just what Indiana was to do for Bristow, and the opportunity was quickly seized by the ring managers Hayes was not Blaine, and that was enough, it was all they cared for in Bristow So it appears Hayes receiving the support of the ring was the merest accident, so far as he and his friends were concerned It was luck and not management, and the nominees of the Convention are as free from any taint of ring influence as if they had been opposed from first to last by the Washington managers There is not the slightest ground for suspicion that they have been involved in any transaction that is inconsistent with the record they had made before the Convention met, as Republicans of the highest and purest type They are entitled to the confidence of the whole party, and especially of the reform Republicans with whom they have been identified, and the support they received in the Convention from the ring crowd is no more to set down against them, than the understanding that they would support Bristow in the emergency above referred to is to be considered as compromising the honor of that distinguished gentleman

TIME TO BEGIN

The most sanguine Republican who does not let his zeal run away with his judgment must admit that the prospect of carrying the Southern States, or any more than one or two of them is exceedingly slim Nothing short of the most determined and protracted effort will give the Republicans the electoral votes of any of those States except South Carolina and perhaps Florida The Democratic sentiment in the South is gaining rather than losing strength The possession of this great body of States, though most of them have but a small number of votes comparatively speaking, gives confidence and energy to the Democracy all over the Union, and renders it all the more important that no effort be spared by the Republicans to carry the doubtful States of the North While Hayes and Wheeler will undoubtedly receive a large majority of the popular vote the loss of a few of the great Northern States would peril their election

The Democrats are going to make the most vigorous campaign they have made for years They admit generally, that the Republicans have put forth a strong ticket, and one which, if elected, will place the Government in worthy hands, but they are hungry for the spoils of office and will leave nothing undone that seems to promise them a place at the public lunch table It behooves the Republicans to be up and doing The favorable reception their candidates have met, does not insure a victory without effort Only they who strive can win It is not too early to begin active work in the way of organization for the great conflict which must commence in the course of a month from this time, What are the Republicans of Oregon doing What is the State Central Committee doing toward preparing for the contest?

THE PRESS ON THE ST LOUIS NOMINATIONS

The Eastern papers of the day following the nomination of Tilden and Hendricks have reached us From their various comments we extract sufficient to show their general drift

The New York Times says

The nomination of Hendricks for Vice President fixes the character of the Democratic Convention The declaration in the platform for an unconditional repeal of the resumption clause of the act of 1875 was a bid for the votes of the inflationists the nomination of Hendricks is a still higher bid for the same [illegible] It is not probable that the inflationists will now hold out any longer They have [illegible] They have been [illegible] by the Republicans They have got substantially all they asked for in the Democratic platform and their most conspicuous leader has been placed on that platform to give it still greater distinctness and emphasis

* * * *

The Democrats have given us a double faced [illegible] they now give us a double faced ticket They ask the hard money men to look at Tilden and the hard money phrases in the platform they ask the soft money men to look at Hendricks and the unconditional repeal [illegible] postponement of resumption But when an intelligent people have four months in which to inspect such a combination they are [illegible] whose interest it is to mislead them The soft money men may [illegible] the hard money men will [illegible] Hendricks and repudiation

The Herald says

The St Louis platform differs from ordinary party manifestoes of the kind in the marks it bears of party unity of composition In point of fact it is the work of one skillful hand—that of Mr Manton Marble—and was adopted almost precisely in the form of his original draft It is framed with great artfulness especially on the financial question, all the ingenuity of the author having been exerted to give it the appearance of a compromise while making it substantially a hard money declaration

This election will be but slightly affected by the platforms It will turn chiefly on party spirit and zeal and the personal strength of the candidates The second place on the Democratic ticket was given to Hendricks with reference to the October elections Gov Tilden is the most unpopular candidate that could have been selected for running in Ohio and Indiana and it was the aim of the Convention to supplement him with a man who is more acceptable to the Democracy of those States There is probably no expectation of carrying Ohio against Governor Hayes but if Indiana can be saved Hendricks has a better chance of doing it than any other second name that could have been put on the ticket If Indiana goes Democratic in October it will break and soften the blow which is pretty sure to come from Ohio but if the party loses both of those States it will have scarcely a chance of carrying New York, and the contest will be virtually decided before any State votes for Presidential electors

Says the Tribune

Republicans are very likely to underrate the strength of this ticket They will make a fatal mistake if they do not understand that it is dangerously strong and begin without delay the efforts necessary to secure success They will miserably deceive themselves if they expect much from Democratic dissensions Mr Tilden has been nominated after a strife of unprecedented bitterness it is true But it is an old story that Democratic quarrels end like cat fights Mr Kelly already declares that he shall do all that he can for the ticket The demand for the repeal of the resumption act will help to reconcile the Western opposition and Mr Hendricks has been a favorite candidate with the inflationists Democracy is very hungry For sixteen years it has been excluded from the spoils Its most sincere leaders fully believe that any sacrifice whatever is justifiable in order to defeat the Republican party Those members who are less disinterested will work the more zealously for Mr Tilden because they will believe that he can win Repudiation and Hendricks are expected to carry Indiana and thus divide the October States Tilden and professions of hard money and reform are expected to carry New York and Connecticut

The Philadelphia Times is cautious It discusses the relative strength of the two tickets at considerable length, and winds up with the statement substantially that the position of affairs is such as to admonish political prophets to keep silence till the crystalization of public sentiment has gone on a little longer It thinks Hayes will lose a hundred thousand Republican and Tilden a hundred thousand Democratic votes, with a possibility that either of these losses may reach half a million, and turn the scale

There is a vacancy in the Presidency of Amherst college which causes as much speculation as to who is likely to be chosen to fill it as if the position were the governorship of a State Reverend Dr Storrs it is said, is the choice of the trustees and friends of the institution, but he does not incline to accept the place After him, Mr Seelye the congressman professor of Massachusetts is considered the most eligible man for the position but his constituents urge that his great success in the field of national politics should be regarded by him as a call to continue in the broader field of labor. One or two other distinguished names have been mentioned but all of them seem to be engaged in other ways and unable or unwilling to take the place for which such men alone are fitted There is an abundant supply of mediocre talent ready and anxious to step up to the head of the old and honored institution, but such is not the material out of which the Amherst trustees and Amherst alumni propose to make a president

The Tilden Democracy in New York have evolved from their inner consciousness a political programme with which it is difficult to find fault. They propose first to elect Gov Seymour governor of the State in the place of Tilden who is to resign and be elected President, then Seymour is to resign and be appointed Secretary of State and Dorsheimer lieutenant governor, is to be governor The plan is admirable and reminds us forcibly of the ingenious contrivances of those gentlemen who employ their time in constructing machines for creating perpetual motion which machines are generally theoretically perfect, but when tested never work We do not think Mr Dorsheimer will ever be governor of New York if his enjoyment of that dignified office depends upon the election of Tilden to the Presidency and the appointment of Seymour as Secretary of State

The Springfield Republican considers the nomination of Hayes and Wheeler a fortunate move for the Republicans of Massachusetts and remarks that this nomination will call out a large vote without arousing any of the bitterness which would have been inevitable with Blaine or Conkling in the place of Hayes The State ticket, and most of the Congressional districts may be set down as safe for the Republicans

The race on last Saturday over the Long Branch course, free to all beaten horses, single dash of a mile and a half, was won by Ascension time 2 45½ Exactly such a race was won on the East Portland track by Tom Merry, in just the same time Oregon need not be ashamed of her horses so long as they do as well as the best of their rank do at the fashionable meetings at the East

Immigration from Europe continues to decrease The falling off this year is greater than it has been for many years preceding The number of European visitors is not nearly so large as was expected and the decrease of immigration beyond all previous calculation Meanwhile Asiatic immigration has been greater than ever before to THE BOTTOM.—On the 29th of December last the schooner Ucnsia left Kodiak for San Francisco, and has never been heard from. She carried a cargo of furs, and each [illegible] passengers had several hundred dollars. John M. King, collector at Kodiak, wrote to San Francisco, stating that if on the receipt of his letter the schooner had not reached that port, there could be no doubt that she had gone to the bottom. Some time ago the Louisa Morrison was dispatched from [illegible] in search of the missing schooner, but she has not yet returned. However, little hope that any tidings of the lost will be learned. The names of those on board the schooner were: Thomas K. Lee, wife and son, aged two years. Passengers—Lake Sheerar, late deputy collector; C. Haritonoff and the son of D. Shirpser, firm of D. Shirpser & Co., Kodiak; Williams, bookkeeper with Falkner, & Co., San Francisco; Emanuel Shirpser and six seamen, names unknown; in all, 14

LOOK TO YOUR HEALTH.—It would be a sanitary precaution to mix chloride of lime and other powerful disinfectants in the water that has been left in various portions of the lower part of the city. Since the subsidence of the flood every avenue of escape for [illegible] except by soaking through the soil slow process of evaporation, is cut off. Exposed to the hot rays of the sun, rapidly becomes stagnant, and is a source of disease. In many places the a very foul odor, and unless something is done to neutralize the poison thus and carried off, sickness will inevitably follow. Lime and salt, it is said, is disinfectant when mixed in considerable quantities and thrown into the water. These articles are both cheap, it would be as beneficial to use them freely, and money for deodorizing material a physician's bill.

THE SINGLE SCULL RACE.

LOV [illegible] AWARDED THE CASH AND PRIZE.

The race which terminated so unsatisfactorily on Saturday (both the contestants claiming fouls) has been decided by the awarding of the boat to Mr. Loveridge. The referee forwarded his decision to the Centennial committee, which reads as follows:

PORTLAND, July 10, 1876.

GENTLEMEN: At the conclusion of the single scull race on Saturday last between Messrs. Loveridge and Holland, Mr. Holland's boat was first at the winning post. A claim of foul rowing was entered by Mr. Loveridge against Mr. Holland, who afterwards made a similar claim against Mr. Loveridge. In consequence of the conflicting testimony upon these claims I have decided that the race shall be rowed over the same course, at such time as shall be found most convenient for both parties, not later than one week from last Saturday. In the next race a suitable boat should be provided to enable the judges to accompany the contesting boats over the course. Yours truly,

F. H. LAMB, Umpire.

Mr. Sanborn, of the Centennial committee, immediately telegraphed Mr. Holland at Oregon City the gist of the referee's decision, asking if he (Holland) would row, and the answer that came was the one positive word "no;" thereupon Mr. Sanborn gave an order instructing Mr. LaChapelle to deliver the boat [the one Mr. Holland rowed in in the race last Saturday] to Mr. Loveridge. The award, though satisfactory to Mr. Loveridge and his many friends, will, no doubt, create more or less dissatisfaction to Mr. Holland and his friends, who backed him in the contest. It is to be regretted that the race terminated as it did. It was a great oversight on the part of the judges in not arranging that a boat accompany the contestants over the course. Mr. Loveridge signified his willingness to row it over again, feeling confident that he could win in a fair contest. Some think that Holland will challenge his late competitor to another trial. The result of the race should not deter others from trying their speed in single or double sculls.

COMPLIMENTARY TO THE SOLDIERS.

The following letter, written by Gen. O. O. Howard to Col. Alfred Sully, commanding Fort Vancouver, under date of July 7th, contains deserved complimentary allusions to the U. S. troops who were here on the Fourth, the officers in immediate command, and also to Col. Sully:

Permit me to express in writing what I have had occasion several times to say, that I was delighted with the excellent conduct of the officers and enlisted men of your command who participated in the exercises in Portland during the Centennial celebration. On all hands the soldierly appearance of the command, the completeness of the performance of the part assigned them, and the uniform good behavior on the part of every man was commended, and must reflect honor not only upon themselves, but upon yourself, under whose instruction and discipline they have for some time been. Please express my thanks to Capt. John A. Kress, ordnance department, for aiding you by his own detachment in guarding the post, so that you could fill up the requisite number; also for accompanying the battalion on the occasion.

Very respectfully your ob't serv't,
O. O. HOWARD,
Brig. Gen., commanding Dep't.

ORDER OF ARREST.

Last week mention was made of the killing of an Indian—one of Joseph's band—in Wallowa valley, by two white men, who suspected him of having been engaged in running off the settlers' stock. The following letter, bearing on the subject, will require no explanation:

HEADQUARTERS DEPT. COLUMBIA,
PORTLAND, July 8, 1876.

To E. C. Brainard, County Judge, Union, Union county, Oregon—Sir: The department commander instructs me to request you to cause the arrest of the two whites, Finley and McNall, who killed the Indian of Young Joseph's band, and bring the matter before the grand jury with the view to their indictment for murder, and trial before the circuit court held in the Union county district. If the citizens of that section desire to preserve the peace, they must show to the Indians and the State that aggressions and murder by the whites shall be followed by prompt and sufficient punishment.

Very respectfully your ob'd't serv't,
H. CLAY WOOD, A. A. G.

AMUSEMENTS.

FOR TWO NIGHTS ONLY.—The California Minstrels will appear again in this city Wednesday and Thursday evenings. Friday morning the company will leave here for Astoria, and will appear there on the evening of that day. Saturday they will take the steamer for San Francisco direct. On each evening there will be an entire change of programme—a number of novel and very attractive features will be introduced. This will positively be the last appearance of the company. Lovers of the ridiculous, as well as that which is more substantial and sentimental, should improve the opportunities thus presented of witnessing these closing performances. Mr. Chas. M. Atkins, the energetic manager, has been to very considerable expense in bringing such a large and talented corps of artists to this city, and Portlanders should manifest their appreciation of the efforts made by him to furnish a class of entertainment second to none which has been presented the public. On both evenings we hope to see crowded houses.

PRIZE MEDAL FOR WING SHOOTING.

To the Centennial Executive Committee of the City of Portland—Gentlemen: Your committee appointed to superintend the wing shooting have the honor to report that Joseph Payne, one of the contestants, is entitled to the gold badge ordered by you for the best shot, also fifty dollars in coin in addition, being a part of the entrance money. We take much pleasure in saying that Mr. Payne, in this contest, has kept up the reputation of the man whose name he bears—a man who, in a national contest with England's best shot, came off victorious.

Our Mr. Payne, as far as he went, could not have been beaten, having killed all the birds he shot at—eleven.

Messrs. Fishel & Roberts, the enterprising clothiers, contemplate an early removal from their old stand; but that does not prevent purchasers from securing good bargains. They are always ready to suit the tastes of customers, and their immense stock enables them to sell the most fashionable goods at cost price. Go early and avoid the rush.

The flood has subsided and the Centennial celebration is over; but Beck & Waldman can be found at their old stand ready to greet every customer with a smile and sell you just such a suit of clothes as you desire. They are constantly rushed, but can find time to accommodate every customer.

LIBERAL ASSOCIATION.

The Liberal Association, at their regular meeting Sunday, had an interesting discussion upon the proposition "That the doctrine of creation, or the calling of something into existence out of nothing, is in conflict with the known facts of science." The announcement that Prof. Condon, Dr. Harvey and Dr. York would participate in the discussion, called out a large audience.

Dr. Rex, who opened the discussion, did not take positively either the affirmative or negative of the question, but argued at some length to show that it was not a proper subject of scientific inquiry.

The belief in the doctrine of creation is a scientific one, as it is an attempt to assign a cause for the existence of matter, and it is considered to be a fundamental principle of science that nothing can exist without a cause. It is unscientific in this, however, that it affords no real explanation since it is as easy to believe that matter exists without a cause as to believe that a creator capable of forming matter out of nothing exists without a cause. It is no more unscientific to assert that matter has been created from nothing than it is to assert that matter exists. The former assertion attempts to find a cause for matter, the latter to find a cause for the various sensations, as of light, sound, touch, etc., which we experience and which we consider to be caused by the material objects around us. The conclusions arrived at are—that, inasmuch as science deals only with the properties and relations of matter, it affords no data on which to base any conclusions as to its essential nature or origin.

Dr. Harvey, the next speaker, said he would not attempt to prove the existence of matter, for that is a self-evident proposition which admits of no proof. He held that matter and force are eternal and indestructible, and everything we know of grows out of these elements. There is the same amount of matter and force now as always. While matter and force are eternal and without cause, all manifestations of nature are effects of causes which we may discover and comprehend. The doctrine of correlation of forces teaches that all the different forms of force are mutually convertible. motion may be converted into heat, light, electricity, etc., and vice versa. In like manner all mental phenomena, such as thought, memory, and even the higher emotions, are but the natural forces acting through organized matter.

Prof. Condon said he would have to take issue with the gentleman when he denied that any form of force had a beginning. One fact is worth a thousand arguments. Truth is to be discovered not invented. He would refer to the geological record of facts. He found in that record facts leading him back step by step in the history of the world to a time at which no animal or vegetable life or force existed. There is a large amount of the material world without this form of force. There must therefore have been a creative act to produce it. A force is necessary to protect our wheat fields and schools from the natural forces from natural selection. If there was not a constant exertion on our part, a few generations would take us back to the Modoc. There has been a spiritual force introduced against natural force, which continually fights it down to-day. This spiritual force does not belong to the material world; they are antagonistic. As soon as the spiritual force gives way and the pulse ceases to beat, the natural forces begin their work of destruction, and decay is the result. There is a continual struggle between spirit and matter. There has gone forth an edict to which we all are subject—work or die!

As to the beginning of force, he would refer to the higher qualities of the mind, as honor and other emotional sentiments, which are in conflict with all that is material and could not grow out of it, but show evidence of a higher creative power. He denied the assertion of some of the speakers, that it was held by churches or church people that a belief in any particular creed is necessary to salvation.

Dr. J. L. York said: We shall not presume to say what forces were or were not in nature at any time. That we cannot definitely say when the forces in nature first began, we should have more reverence for the forces of nature. He was willing to say with Tyndall, "Matter has done it all. The essence of matter is God—the power and potency of every form of life. All is in the limit of nature; there is no such thing as supernatural."

The discussion was extensive, and was participated in by others, but we can give only a brief notice.

GRAND CENTENNIAL CELEBRATION AT TURNER STATION.

The grounds prepared for the celebration were well chosen near Turner Station, and were easily accessible from all sides. The energy of the committee of arrangements had caused everything to be in complete readiness, so when the celebration opened on the morning of the Fourth nothing was wanting to make it an entire success.

Early in the morning minute guns were fired, and the people began to assemble from every direction, and the grounds were soon well crowded with a great mass. The exercises opened at the speakers' stand by singing the "Star Spangled Banner" by the choir, under the skillful leadership of Prof. J. P. Powell and daughter, of Salem. The prayer was made by Rev. J. Cole, followed by the reading of the Declaration, by Mrs. Daniel Clark. The Centennial oration was delivered by Mr. L. H. Wells, of Salem, with energy, and was well received.

After the oration a recess was had, during which time everybody sought a cool place and spread the lunch. The recess was spent in mirth and sport and well enjoyed by every one. The people were again called together at the stand, when toasts were proposed and responded to. Among them were: "Our Growing Youths," responded to by J. N. Duncan; "The American Press," responded to by L. H. Wells; "Our Country," by Mr. Kobs. A spirit of intense enthusiasm pervaded all the responses which were made, and were heartily applauded by the people. At the close of this part of the programme, three hearty cheers were given for the orator, the president of the day, and Prof. Powell and daughter, for services rendered at the celebration.

The audience adjourned from the speaker's stand and repaired to various places of amusement, consisting of croquet, sack race, climbing the greased pole, blind wheelbarrow-race, base ball, swinging, etc.

The success of the celebration is due to the energy manifested by the President, E. R. Henderson, the marshals, Henry Rogers, J. R. Truman, and others. The vocal music was conducted by Prof. J. P. Powell, assisted by his daughter at the organ. Altogether the celebration was a grand success in every respect.

MILITARY NOTES.

Hospital Steward George Dieffenbach, having reported at these headquarters, in compliance with paragraph 12, special orders No. 100, May 20, 1876, Adjutant-General's office, is, upon the recommendation of the medical director, assigned temporarily to duty at Fort Vancouver, W. T., to which post he will repair and report to the commanding officer.

The estimates for quartermaster's supplies for posts in this department for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1877, having been approved by the major-general commanding the military division of the Pacific, the chief quartermaster of the department will purchase in open market such of the articles as are not on hand or contracted for, and forward them at once to the posts to be supplied.

A nice steak, a splendid lunch or a delicious cup of coffee, which ? Barnes can furnish you with either or all.

The Centennial is over, and our country cousins, as well as the city folks, have had an abundance of amusements. All who have paid a visit to Jos. Kohn's clothing house express themselves thoroughly satisfied with the manner in which he treated them.

Osceola did not win the big race but "Mercer" continues to sell the very best brands of imported and domestic cigars to be had in the city. Oro Fino block.

HAIR RESTORED.

If any who are skeptical of the ability of Mrs. S. Lord to produce a crop of new hair in all stages of baldness will call or write to her at her rooms in National Bank building, Portland, she will refer them to several prominent Portland gentlemen who three months since placed themselves under her treatment and are now in possession of a crop of new fine hair which is rapidly increasing in strength and vigor. Itching of the scalp and falling hair checked readily. Preparations sent to all parts of Oregon and Washington.

THE TERRITORIES.

The population of Denver, Col., is now set down at 11,000.

The Bellingham Bay Mail has entered upon its fourth volume.

A three thousand dollar gambling establishment is en route for the Black Hills.

Brigham Young has dedicated a new Mormon temple at St. George, Southern Utah.

Frank Stadley, of White river, King county, was adjudged insane and sent to the asylum at Steilacoom last week.

P. Sonna, of Boise City, was recently awarded the contract for furnishing Fort Boise with wood—700 cords—at $5 75.

The B. B. Mail reports the destruction by fire of the barn and stable of Mr. Caldwell, of Nootsack. Farm implements, harness and one horse were also destroyed.

The celebration at Chehalis is spoken of in terms of the highest praise by those who attended. Geo. N. McConahn delivered the oration. Some 600 people were present.

Col. Viall, who has just returned from a visit to the Centennial, says the display of Montana minerals is far more extensive and elegant than any other State or Territory. They attract universal attention and are the wonder of all who see them.

The horses attached to the stage running between Port Discovery and Port Townsend became unmanageable last Tuesday and ran off, upsetting the vehicle and injuring the passengers. One of the latter, a carpenter named John Hinquest, had three ribs broken, while the driver, Mr. Gibson, had a leg broken.

The Olympian says: Mr. John Fift was drowned on the beach of Vashon's Island on the Fourth. He undertook to paddle out on a log to a boat anchored out from the shore, and it turned over and drowned him. He was a native of Canada, about 40 years of age, and had followed logging for a livelihood for some time.

There are 20 logging camps in Snohomish county, giving employment to 237 men and 117 yoke of oxen. Including the camps on the Snoqualmie, in King county, the product of which passes down the Snohomish river, the number of camps is increased to 28 and of men to 307, employing 161 yoke of oxen. The annual product is about 50,000,000 feet of lumber, four-fifths of which is cut on the Snohomish river and its tributaries.

The Boulder, Col., News says: Last week a miner named Mitch fell into a shaft forty-eight feet deep, situated in Magnolia district, but, strange to relate, escaped almost unhurt, except a badly jarred pair of ankles. The shaft was almost straight, so that in falling he only touched two or three times. His partner, Mr. Armstrong, saw him fall, and shouted down the shaft, scarcely expecting a reply, but received a prompt answer. Mr. A. immediately went for assistance, but on returning found Mitch coming out alone. He is a large, heavy man, weighing about 190 pounds. The wonder is that every bone in his body was not broken.

A bear story comes from Eastern Montana. Harry Rea, while at the round-up on Madison during the late storm, discovered two large cinnamon bears eating the carcass of a cow that had fallen over the creek bank. He lassoed one and started to camp with it, but the animal had not been broke to lead and pulled on the rope until his saddle became loose. About this time a round-up man happened along and took hold of the lariat and held the bear in statu quo until Harry went down to the brush and cut a club, with which he killed the bear. Harry wanted some bear meat, and this was his only chance, as he had neither gun nor pistol. They took the bear into camp and had a feast.

The Arizona Miner of June 16th, has the following in regard to several parties who left this place a few weeks ago for Prescott, Arizona: "Mr. and Mrs. W. Peck, father and mother of Ed. G. Peck, of the Peck mine, and of Mrs. Geo. Banghart, of Chino valley, accompanied by Mrs. Skinkle and her daughter Hattie, arrived by A. and N. M. stage on Tuesday morning from Washington Territory. Miss Skinkle comes from the printing office of A. G. Walling, Portland, Oregon, and being a printer, has gone to work in this office. The compositors have all thrown away their spectacles in a vain attempt to appear young in her presence, and if errors in typography shall be detected in the paper this week, the Editor hopes the reader will excuse them, as a female type-setter is an innovation on all established precedent here, and the office is in confusion."

The War against Disease.

The war waged against disease by Hostetter's Stomach Bitters goes bravely on. Dispatches are constantly received from the cured indicating the the decisive nature of the advantages obtained by the great botanic cordial over its formidable adversary. Malarial fevers, constipation, torpidity of the liver and kidneys, general debility, nervousness and rheumatic ailments invariably yield to this conqueror and preventive of disease. For the infirmities incident to the decline of life it is also an excellent specific. It hastens convalescence and repairs the ravages of ill health by facilitating the conversion of food into blood of a rich and nourishing quality. The appetite is improved by it, and in cases of nervous disease it tranquilizes that great sensorium, the brain, far more effectually than any mineral sedative.

Jean Paul Richter thought money was dross, but he always found it handy to have a little dross about him when he wanted a glass of beer. We prefer Noble Whisky, sold by H. Fleckenstein, 187 First street.

W. L. ADAMS, M. D., A. M., LL. D., corner of First and Salmon streets, is curing the most inveterate chronic diseases of all kinds at a low price, by medicated, electric lightning cream baths, and by combining the German and French with the American improved practice, mixed with a little common sense. His treatment is, in the main, entirely original, and works almost miracles, as his numerous patients will attest. Is extraordinarily successful in treating female complaints.

After [illegible] weeks of high water [illegible] the [illegible] business of the city and the week of celebration we find that merchants and traders again settle down to work with a [illegible] of courage all expressing themselves as satisfied with the week's partial holiday and ready to enter the arena of business There is [illegible] over the losses experienced during the past month and in the activity rendered necessary to straighten things up ready for the ordinary business in the part of the city lately under water the actual damage has not yet been counted up In a few days more every thing will be in position and trade matters in that part of the city will move on in the same channel as before the flood and the 4th of July

In regard to matters purely financial there has been but little change in the general situation during the past few weeks. A good deal of money has been put into circulation, but in the main at the principal depositories there is but little difference in the general balance Locally the banks report an average amount of counter business with but few calls for any large sums The demand for capital to employ in the movement of the crops has not yet set in and the disposition now is toward an accumulation of funds in the banks for that purpose There has hardly been time yet, since the celebration closed to allow business to resume its ordinary channels, and until it does, it is impossible to approximate the full effect which important events occurring throughout the country during the past three or four weeks will have upon our commercial interests. In the meantime monetary matters are unchanged in the home market, rates of loans, discounts etc being about the same now as prevailed at the beginning of June This country is rather behind California and the [illegible] States in making the turn from the season of dullness which succeeds the close of the spring and early summer trade and [illegible] the activity arising from the incoming of harvest. We have hardly yet reached that turning point, and the bulk of business now going on is of rather a preparatory character than otherwise, and hence prices are but little affected as the volume of commodities of all kinds changing hands is limited to the temporary [illegible] of trade. There is, however a moderate hopefulness in the future and most business men regard the outlook as encouraging Money is shown by the freedom with which people distributed it last week, to be quite as plentiful as usual, and with an active condition of trade and a greater stimulus to local improvements, etc., capital would be drawn out of the places where it is held in [illegible] to put the country in a good financial condition. These things are what is now desired that our city and State may, in common with the rest of the country, start in on the second hundred years of the nation's existence with all the elements of [illegible] in active operation.

Domestic Produce

Has undergone some changes since our last report, as will be seen by our quotations given below Trade is showing some signs of revival but is far from activity, either export or local Continued advices of the dull condition of the Liverpool wheat market have had the effect to cause exporters here to reduce their figures for that cereal to $1 40@1 45, and with the [illegible] outlook some are even afraid of the [illegible] at the lowest figure [illegible] It is probable that there are four or five [illegible] of the [illegible] crop yet in the State, but it will be carried over until the new [illegible], except what is [illegible] and shipped to San Francisco or Northern [illegible] as there will be no Euro[illegible] bound [illegible] here to load before the harvest begins. Freights are now low for grain ships, but there are still no takers for a large number of [illegible] that are waiting at San Francisco There is nothing very encouraging to the hope for high prices for wheat this year unless [illegible] in Europe should revolutionize the markets in this country. While the present [illegible] and un[illegible] there will be but little or nothing done in the cereal. There [illegible] is in liberal supply and prices remain at $5 ⅌ bbl for best extras with a [illegible] common to inferior [illegible] Oats have declined but slightly and as the local trade consumes the bulk of receipts but little fluctuation is anticipated until the new crop comes in Barley is wanted at our quotations Some shipments from California are being made to supply the business of this city and State, but still prices are rather below the quotations of a month ago Dairy products are in fair supply from adjacent farms and from the interior of the State and prices have tended downward since the celebration closed as the home trade is less and the San Francisco market is de[illegible] Eggs are in demand at 25@25c per dozen, a round price for the season Dried fruits are still high and there is a good demand Provisions sell freely at quotations and dealers are doing a large business for the time of the year Oregon products in this [illegible] bear a better character abroad this season than usual a fact we are glad to note and one which is tending already to the perceptible in[illegible] of the trade. The wool market is quite active and receipts are increasing, but prices are still about as at the opening of the [illegible] Shippers inform us that none but the best quality will command our highest figures, and that the bulk of sales is a reduction of 1 to 4 cents per pound on that price As will be seen by our telegrams, the Eastern markets are yet very dull, with a demand only for special grades and that at low figures.

[illegible] fruits and vegetables are abundant in the market, and as prices are changing daily it is un[illegible] to make regular quotations. The rates are controlled by each day's supply and by the wants of individual dealers.

BAY VIEW HOUSE,

BAKER'S BAY, UNITY, W. T.

MR. DEXTER INFORMS THE PUBLIC that his House is now open for the reception of guests. Its advantages in every respect over any other Summer Resort are too well known to Oregonians to repeat here To strangers I will say that the place is in plain sight and across the Bay from Astoria on the sheltered side of Cape Hancock, and very near and adjacent to the Fort and lighthouse on Baker's Bay a beautiful sheet of water unequaled for Sailing Rowing, Fishing and Bathing The dark forest with its picturesque drives its mountain springs profusion of wild berries, wild flowers and ferns the horse trail to the Cape for Equestrian or walkers is one of the most delightful panoramas to the eye ever witnessed The cosy beaches its caves luxuriantly wooded island its views of Astoria Chinook Fort Stevens moist old Tillamook in the blue distance

The courteous hospitality of the officers of the Garrison at the Fort and also of Mr Munson and family of the Lighthouse make that place well worthy of a visit

The Salt Water Bathing in the bay within a few feet of the hotel excels anything far or near, for warmth of the water and mildness of its waves far preferable to the heavy surf and cold winds for women children and invalids while the sturdy swimmer or those who love the foaming surf in a few minutes walk will find a beach unsurpassed in beauty hard and level for one continuous drive of thirty miles At this end are huge rocks stretching out into the ocean from which fishers take from the sea Bass Rockfish Tom Cod Porgies etc etc Crabs Clams Oysters &c in abundance (and the Table will never lack a sufficiency of those desirable adjuncts) Boats upon the Bay Saddle Ponies for the children Teams to the Weather Beach Croquet Swings, Quoits etc FREE to Guests

Prices reduced from the old tariff

To those who would like to camp out, wood and water and use of ground free. Groceries provisions milk eggs butter, etc. for sale at a small profit [illegible] campers can board at the Hotel if they prefer at fair rates A large Livery Stable two new and fine Ten Pin Alleys attached to the place

Stage Office to Oysterville, Postoffice Wells Fargo & Co's office also there No raw winds or damp fogs and more beautiful tracks and shady groves cannot be found The only regret the Landlord has is that his house is not larger but his grounds are large enough and beautiful enough to warrant next season a Hotel worthy of the surroundings.
